

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

HEINZ L. ANSBACHER, professor of psychology, University of Vermont, is editor of this Journal, and with his wife, Rowena R. Ansbacher, co-editor of The Individual Psychology of Alfred Adler and Adler's Superiority and Social Interest.

KENNETH B. CLARK, professor of psychology, City College, City University of New York, is also president of the Metropolitan Applied Research Center, New York, and research director of the Northside Center for Child Development. His book, Dark Ghetto: Dilemmas of Social Power, which won the 1966 Sidney Hillman award, is based on his experiences as "involved observer," chairman of the board of directors, and chief project consultant for Harlem Youth Opportunities Unlimited (HARYOU) during its research and planning phase.

RAYMOND J. CORSINI, who is in private practice in Honolulu, Hawaii, states that his two years of instruction with Dr. Dreikurs from 1953 to 1955, concurrent with his Ph.D. studies at the University of Chicago, were the most significant years of his life. He is author of Methods of Group Psychotherapy and Roleplaying in Psychotherapy, as well as co-editor of Critical Incidents in Psychotherapy and Critical Incidents in Teaching.

DANICA DEUTSCH, executive director of the Alfred Adler Mental Hygiene Clinic, New York, has been engaged in Adlerian counseling and psychotherapy for forty-one years. Author of numerous articles, she is co-editor with Dr. Kurt A. Adler of Essays in Individual Psychology.

RUDOLF DREIKURS, M.D., professor of psychiatry, Chicago Medical School, and director of Alfred Adler Institute, Chicago, is described in detail in this issue.

ANTONIO J. FERREIRA, born in Lisbon, Portugal, obtained his M.D. at the University of Lisbon, 1946. After coming to the United States he became a diplomate, Board of Psychiatry, 1955. He is research consultant for the San Jose State College and research associate, Mental Research Institute, Palo Alto. His special interest is in family therapy and family research.

ELI GINZBERG, Hepburn Professor of Economics and director, Conservation of Human Resources, Columbia University, is author and co-author of more than 40 books, largely in the field of human resources and manpower. The two latest are: The Middle Class Negro in the White Man's World (Columbia Univer., 1967) and Manpower Agenda for America (McGraw-Hill, in press). He is also chairman, National Manpower Advisory Committee.

BEATRICE LIEBEN, Ph.D., clinical child psychologist and remedial reading specialist, is associate director, Alfred Adler Mental Hygiene Clinic, New York, director of its child and youth services, and lecturer, Alfred Adler Institute. She is consultant to schools in Bergen County, N. J., and was formerly staff member of the Educational Clinic and lecturer, City College, New York.

HAROLD H. MOSAK, clinical psychologist in private practice, is president, American Society of Adlerian Psychology. He has taught for sixteen years at Roosevelt University, is consultant in group therapy, VA Research Hospital, and consultant for the Teacher Development Center conducted by the Rockford, Illinois, schools under a Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Title III grant.

LYDIA SICHER, M.D., Ph.D., Vienna, who died in 1962, had been one of the closest co-workers of Adler, and from 1941 on leader of the Adlerian circle in Los Angeles, of their Society, Institute, and Counseling Center. She was also on the staffs of the Los Angeles Psychiatric Service and Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.